Welcome to the New Jersey IEC Association

Whether an electrical contractor has just earned their license and is a one-man shop or has grown their business into a large established electrical contractor, the New Jersey Independent Electrical Contractors Association (NJ-IEC) provides the tools to help you be successful.

The New Jersey Independent Electrical Contractors Association (NJ-IEC) is the vehicle assisting electrical contractors in the state to be the best educated, informed and most profitable through apprenticeship, continuing education, membership benefits, and advocacy.

New Jersey | Independent Electrical Contractors

On a daily basis you are confronted with challenges in running your electrical contracting business. The mission of the New Jersey Independent Electrical Contractors Association (NJ-IEC) is to provide you the tools to help you manage these challenges and grow your business.

NJ-IEC provides members numerous benefits including access to the preeminent small business health benefits plan in the state, Association Master Trust, and access to A.M. Best A+ rated Federated Insurance for property casualty, liability, and worker’s compensation. A full listing of benefits can be found at www.nj-iec.org under the Membership tab.

Additionally, NJ-IEC is the only merit shop electrical contracting association representing the industry before the Governor, Legislature, and Executive Branch agencies in Trenton. As 2017 began we continued our year long fight against two significant threats to your electrical license. NJ-IEC members are also regularly updated on a myriad of regulatory changes impacting them at the NLRB, OSHA, and Department of Labor.

CEUs are included with your membership. If you attend meetings on a frequent basis during the three-year licensing cycle there is no need to scramble for CEUs in February and March of every third year.

Finally, membership in NJ-IEC affords you membership in IEC National as we are the state chapter of the organization. Benefits of IEC National include numerous discounts of direct benefit to electrical contractors. A full list can be found at www.nj-iec.org under the Membership tab.

There are many local/county electrical contracting associations that provide CEUs and networking opportunities for electrical contractors. If you currently are a member of a local/county electrical contracting association you should continue to support them for these reasons. However, there is far more to being a successful electrical contractor and NJ-IEC offers many benefits and services that are not available from any other association.

New Jersey IEC and IEC National: IEC is the preeminent association representing merit shop electrical and systems contractors. There is no other merit shop electrical contractor association representing your interests in Washington, D.C. or Trenton and there is no other merit shop electrical contractor association that has developed an apprenticeship curriculum that provides 40 college credits. www.nj-iec.org and www.ieci.org

Association Master Trust (AMT) is a unique not-for-profit self-funded multi-association benefits trust and offers self-funded health and dental benefits programs, combining employer units from fifteen independent trade associations to maximize claim stability, administrative efficiency, cost savings and a full menu of comprehensive benefits. Horizon Blue Cross Blue Shield of New Jersey provides AMT with medical claims processing and managed care services, as well as member access to the Horizon provider networks. The Delta Dental Plan of New Jersey provides AMT with dental claims processing services as well as member access to their dental provider networks. www.amt-nj.com

Federated Insurance is an A.M. Best A+ rated insurer with $6 billion in assets. Less than 10% of P&C insurers are rated A+ or higher. Federated specializes in marketing insurance to contractors and provides NJ-IEC members with commercial general liability, auto, property, and workers compensation coverage. Federated provides safety updates and also provides a unique service called the Federated Employer Practices Network which assists insured employers with employment law/human relations related matters including answers to state specific questions. www.federatedinsurance.com
